

Abiye Hector-Goma MB.BS. M.Sc
Director, Medicals & Health

Abiye Hector-Goma is a graduate of University of Port Harcourt, Nigeria. After an initial career as a trainee Radiologist in Nigeria, he followed another of his passions – Health and Wellbeing. He was a British Chevening Scholar at Leeds Metropolitan University where he obtained a Masters in Health Promotion, and later worked with Heart Research, UK to establish a strategy for lifestyle interventions. Following a parley with MPs on ‘Building a House’ at a House of Commons reception for the charity, where he used the analogy of broad health determinants as the foundation for heart health, he returned to medical practice.

He is currently doing his final year General Practice training in York.

Hector has been involved in leadership in the public, voluntary, faith and community sectors for nearly two decades.

He is married to a wonderful woman, Modupe and is the father of three lovely girls – Aches’, Tobi and Abiye Jr. He is the Director in Medicals & Health, overseeing Administration and IT.

He established Mankind Survival Project in 1992, a non-governmental organisation working in rural communities in the Niger Delta area with youths and women to provide health education, poverty alleviation (through interest-free loans for micro-enterprise) and infrastructural development.
